

Spain's high court grants bail to 5 arrested Catalan lawmakers

Catalan ex-president released by Belgian judge after turning himself in to police
Catalonia's former leader has been released by a Belgian judge after turning himself in to police in Brussels, according to his lawyer.

UK PM appoints Navy reservist to cabinet
British Prime Minister Theresa May moved to shore up her embattled administration on Wednesday, appointing a Royal Navy reservist to replace a minister forced to resign for breaching rules.

Opinion: Theresa May's on borrowed time

Uber dealt another blow in UK

Pope wants faithful to lift hearts, not cellphones, during Mass
Pope Francis wants you to do him a favor. The next time you're in Mass -- put down your cell phone.

Italy: 26 girls found dead at sea
Italian authorities have launched an investigation into the cause of death of 26 teenage girls whose bodies were recovered in the Mediterranean Sea on Sunday.

Germany: Lawmakers to recognize 'third gender'
Germany's top court ruled Wednesday that lawmakers must legally recognize a "third gender" from birth.

Iran state TV welcomes UK minister's 'confession' over British prisoner
British Foreign Secretary Boris Johnson is facing further pressure after Iranian state TV claimed that his statements on the plight of a British-Iranian woman imprisoned in Tehran on charges of espionage confirmed her guilt.

Lawmaker dies days after improper conduct claims
Former Welsh government minister Carl Sargeant, who was removed from office last week following undisclosed allegations about his personal conduct, has died.

Yorkshire's cycling revolution with star aged 85
An 85-year-old is the unlikely star of Britain's cycling revolution.

10 arrests in French-Swiss anti-terror operation
Ten people have been arrested after a joint anti-terror operation by French and Swiss police, CNN affiliate BFMTV reported Tuesday.

British hostage killed in Nigeria
A British national who was taken hostage in Nigeria has been killed while three others have returned home safely.

Opinion: It's not a 'witch hunt,' it's sexual harassment

A week after the New York Times published the first piece about Harvey Weinstein's alleged history of sexual aggression, I saw this tweet: "Every woman I know has had her own Weinstein incident".

Glory and horror of Ferrari's early years

The 1950s were the golden age of motorsport but amid the glory and glamor there were many dark days -- especially for Ferrari.

Wingsuit superman travels at 250 kph

He's a Swedish superman -- minus the kryptonite -- who has become the youngest wingsuit pilot to fly through a solid target at 250 km/h.

Is the world's best restaurant a pub?

A pub in England comes out on top in TripAdvisor's annual readers' contest for world's best restaurant in 2017. Find out how the Black Swan did it.

Candid shots of Cold War Berlin

For photographer Allan Hailstone, 1950s Berlin had an irresistible attraction.

Scorsese's mission to save lost films

MotoGP's Catalan king to win in Spain?

7 hotels for viewing northern lights

Gene Simmons on Prince: He 'did it all'

KISS bassist Gene Simmons speaks to CNN's Pamela Brown about his immense respect for Prince.

Mysterious fireball lights up night sky

A bright glowing object, believed to be a meteor, flashed through the atmosphere above northeast Scotland, lighting the night sky and startling residents.

The crystal Bible to last a billion years

Researchers in the U.K. have developed digital data discs that can survive possibly longer than the human race.

Cricket spaghetti sold in France

This business in northeastern France is making pasta out of creepy crawlies.

What is the European Union?

CNN's Max Foster explains the origins and founding philosophy of the European Union.

500-year-old shipwreck emerges from river

A 15th century merchant ship has been raised from a riverbed in the Netherlands.

Jews leave France in record numbers

New data from Israel shows that a record number of French Jews have left France in the twelve months since the Charlie Hebdo attacks.

The hottest designers creating today

Reinventing the classic park bench design