

UK PM welcomes breakthrough in Brussels

European Commission President, Jean-Claude Juncker said on Friday that British voters and Parliament, not Brussels, will be the ones to decide whether or not Brexit goes ahead.

Opinion: Fresh hell awaits in 2018 for May

After months of negotiations, fraught phone calls and middle of the night flights to Brussels, British Prime Minister Theresa May received the news she wanted in a simple tweet Friday.

Russian election date set for March '18

Russia's next presidential election will be held on March 18, 2018, state-run news agency Tass reported Friday.

Harry and Meghan Markle name wedding date

Prince Harry and Meghan Markle will marry on May 19, 2018, Kensington Palace announced Friday.

'Youthquake' named word of the year

Oxford Dictionaries has crowned "youthquake" as its word of 2017 in a nod to the unexpected level of youth engagement in this summer's election in the United Kingdom.

Britain First: Leader of far-right group arrested

The leader of the far-right UK political group Britain First was arrested Thursday in Northern Ireland as he accompanied the group's deputy leader to a court appearance on hate charges, the group said.

Mourners gather for Grenfell fire memorial

Family, friends and survivors on Thursday joined others remembering the victims of the Grenfell fire at a memorial service at St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

'Like the Civil War without the bombs': Catalonia's messy vote

In an apartment off Barcelona's Passeig de Gracia shopping avenue, Rosario Caceres debated with her grandson over Catalonia's bid for independence from Spain.

US sanctions against Russia a work in progress

President Donald Trump reluctantly approved new sanctions against Russia on August 2 after Congress sent him a bill with strong bipartisan backing, but the administration still hasn't implemented them.

Homeless man steals $350,000 from airport

A homeless man stole 300,000 euros ($353,000) from an unlocked room in Paris' Charles de Gaulle Airport on Friday.

Two new Raphael paintings unearthed

Putin dismisses investigations into Trump collusion

Russian President Vladimir Putin said Thursday that his US counterpart Donald Trump had made some "fairly serious achievements" since he took office and derided what he called the "espionage mania" surrounding meetings held by Trump associates with Russian officials.

Jet draws Christmas tree over Germany

An Airbus plane out of Hamburg, Germany, took a particularly festive flight on Wednesday, mapping out an intricate Christmas tree over the country that could be clearly seen on flight radar sites.

Cycling champion Froome fails drugs test

Migrants exploited in Italy

Inside the Queen's home

Historic residences don't get much more regal than London's Buckingham Palace.

Russian models challenge stereotypes

In search of distinctive Russian faces, the biggest names in fashion have started turning to one modeling agency in particular -- Lumpen. Less than two years after launching, the Moscow-based company has already cast models in major fashion shows for the likes of Kanye West, Vetements, Lanvin and Commes de Garçons.

Artist's house is an Olympic stadium

Norway's footballers sign historic equal pay agreement

Germany's deserted airport of the future

Gene Simmons on Prince: He 'did it all'

KISS bassist Gene Simmons speaks to CNN's Pamela Brown about his immense respect for Prince.

Mysterious fireball lights up night sky

A bright glowing object, believed to be a meteor, flashed through the atmosphere above northeast Scotland, lighting the night sky and startling residents.

The crystal Bible to last a billion years

Researchers in the U.K. have developed digital data discs that can survive possibly longer than the human race.

Cricket spaghetti sold in France

This business in northeastern France is making pasta out of creepy crawlies.

What is the European Union?

CNN's Max Foster explains the origins and founding philosophy of the European Union.

500-year-old shipwreck emerges from river
A 15th century merchant ship has been raised from a riverbed in the Netherlands.

Jews leave France in record numbers
New data from Israel shows that a record number of French Jews have left France in the twelve months since the Charlie Hebdo attacks.

The hottest designers creating today

Reinventing the classic park bench design

Luxury redefined in 8 new objects